WELFARE BILL TO GOVERNOR

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

A LETTER addressed by the Pine Bluff Chamber of Commerce to LaFayette county citizens urging them to support a brand new piece of road construction between Magnolia and Bradley, which would virtually end Hope's expectation of getting a concrete or asphalt road on No. 29 from this city to the Louisiana line, has come to The Star's attention. It is our purpose to serve notice on the State Highway Commission that this section of Arkansas expects the main line of No. 29 to be improved before any laterals are constructed.

Griffin Smith Is Upheld, in Defeat of Auditing Bill

Measure to Transfer the Comptroller's Power Is Beaten 79 to 16

RECOVERY IS CITED

Thousands of Dollars Saved by Halting of Huger Printing Claims

LITTLE ROCK.—After a debate lasting more than 3½ hours Thursday, the house puts its stamp of approval on the administration of State Comptroller Griffin Smith.

By a vote of 79 to 16, a bill by Smith of Randolph, providing for transfer of the duties of the comptroller's office to the office of the auditor of state, was defeated.

Although the author of the bill declared that his only purpose in offering the measure was to effect economy and to prevent an overlapping of duties, personalities were brought in to the discussion. The comptroller was accused of "playing politics," of inefficiency, of showing favoritism, of persecution and of other shortcomings.

He was defended just as ardently. It was declared that he had saved the state "untold thousands" of dollars, that the politicians are "scared of him," that he had done more for the state than any other individual, and that the manner in which he had conducted his office was "efficiency itself."

Saving Money

Smith gave a brief history of the act creating the comptroller's office. He said that the office was created for 20 years 17 years ago and automatically would cease to exist in 1937 unless further provisions for its maintenance were made by the legislature.

"There are no ulterior motives behind this bill," he said. "It is only an economy measure. As our government now is constituted, there is an overlapping of duties between the comptroller's office and that of the state auditor. The auditor is a constitutional officer. By transferring the comptroller's duties to the state auditor, an elective official, there would be a great savings in money and more efficiency."

Smith said the legislature two years ago appropriated $119,000 a year for two years to operate the comptroller's office, whereas the auditor's appropriation was only $28,000. The auditor, with a few more assistants, he said, could have done the comptroller's work just as efficiently. He said he would not object to transferring Griffin Smith and any other employees to the auditor's office. He charged that salaries received by the comptroller and employees in his office are out of line with salaries received by other employees in the capital.

"He pays his stenographers $25 a month more than stenographers in other offices get," he said. "And they

$400,000 Works Program Is Asked

List of Projects to Be Submitted to Planning Board

New City Generator, Missouri Pacific Underpass Suggested

COUNTY PROJECTS AT FILLING DEPOT

Graveling of 300 Miles of Rural Roads at $150,000 Urged

A list of feasible and worthwhile community projects aggregating a construction cost of more than $400,000 is being made up here for submission to the State Planning board, R. B. Stanford, district works supervisor of the FERA, announced Friday.

These projects, along with others being submitted in a state-wide survey, will be made into a state inventory and forwarded to Washington for consideration in the giant public works program to be launched by the federal government.

List of Projects

1. Improvements at the municipal-owned water and light plant, including installation of a new generator and extension of power lines, $80,000.

2. Enlargement and improvements at the Hope airport, $20,000.

3. Erection of a combined fire station and city jail, $35,000.

4. Erection of American Legion hut at Fair Park, $10,000.

5. Paving, extensions and improvements of various streets in Hope, $26,500.

6. Repair and extension of sewer lines in Hope, $26,000.

7. Graveling and repair of bridges on 300 miles of rural roads in Hempstead county, $150,000.

8. Ditching, drainage and malaria control near Ozan, $7,500.

9. Erection of a community building at Fulton, $7,500. Also graveling of several blocks and asphalt surfacing of streets in the main business section, $12,000.

A City Underpass

10. Construction of auto and pedestrian underpass at Fulton to eliminate crossing of Missouri Pacific railroad tracks, $20,000. Levee repairs below Fulton, no estimate given. Repairs on school building at Fulton, no estimate given.

11. School repairs at Columbus. No estimate given.

12. Repair work on county court-house, beautification of old state capitol building, street work and installation of water system at Washington. No estimate given.

Mr. Stanford said other projects were being made up by county officials. He had no record of them.

Defense Rests in Hauptmann Trial, Springing Surprise

New Witness Testifies Man-With-Ladder Was Not Bruno

Copyright Associated Press

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann Friday rested his defense against charges that would send him to the electric chair for the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby.

The defense ended its case shortly after noon, after sensational testimony which was designated to place the kidnaper in possession of a man other than Hauptmann 20 hours before the crime.

Hauptmann's own wood expert, Charles DeBischop, offered a further demonstration to prove his contention that a piece of the kidnaper ladder did not come from Hauptmann's attic.

He contended that the attic floor board, from which the state charged a part of the ladder was sawed, had fewer knots than the board used in the ladder.

This testimony was followed by a surprise witness, Brevoort Bolmer, Bolmer, filling station man, who said he saw a ladder tied on the back of a green sedan, and that Hauptmann was not the man in the car.

More About Ladder

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense battled hard Thursday to offset state testimony that all but put the Lindbergh kidnaper ladder in his hands.

Charles A. de Bisschop, a Waterbury (Ct.) contractor, householder and roadbuilder, testified near the end of Thursday's session that the ladder was a board entirely different from that in Hauptmann's attic.

He was allowed to testify after prosecutors attacked his qualifications, based largely upon his experience in New England lumber mills. Attorney General David T. Wilentz drew from the witness that his entire study of the ladder and connected exhibits took only about three hours, and that he had looked only at the one rail and that he didn't know what the rungs were made of.

When court adjourned, de Bisschop still was on the stand, undergoing cross-examination.

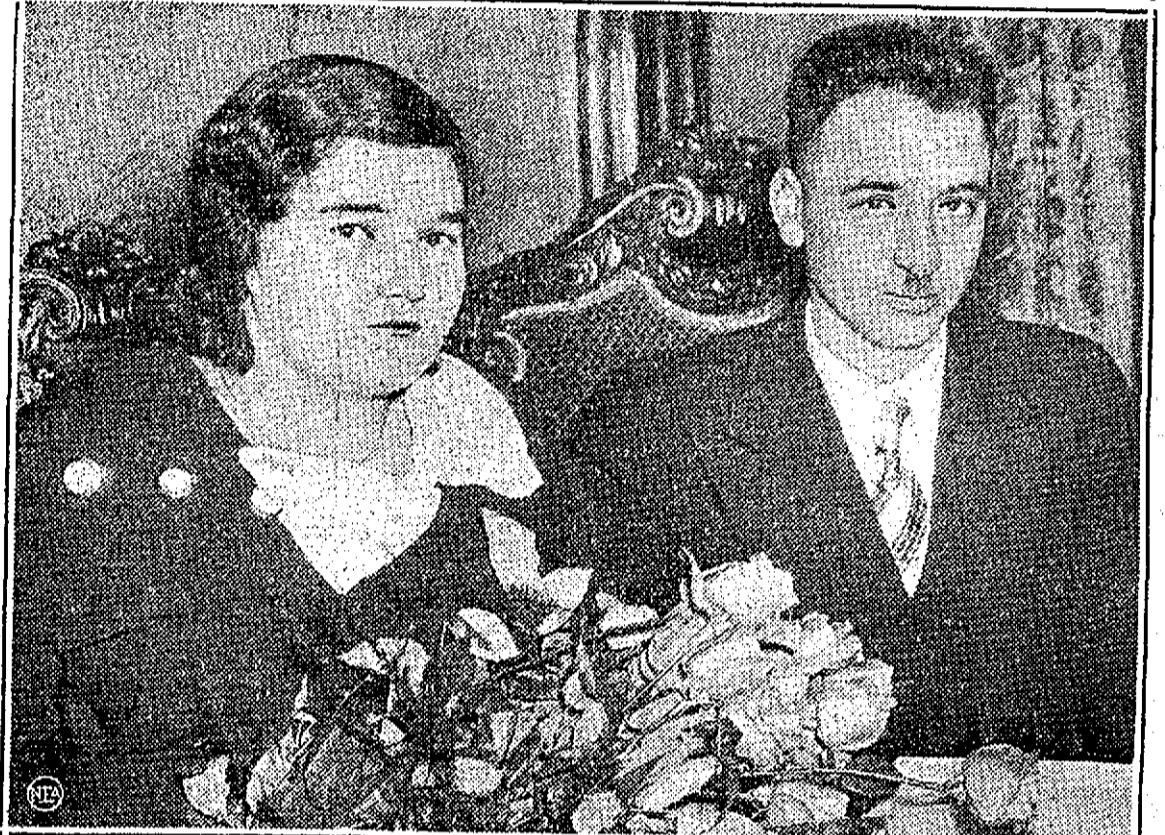

Defense to Rest Case

The defense chief, Edward J. Reilly, told Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard he would rest his case "by noon recess" Friday. He indicated he might call three more witnesses to the stand—David Friedlander, manager of a New York theater, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police and an unnamed "wood expert."

Friedlander's theater, formerly employed Amandus Hochmuth, elderly state witness who said he saw Hauptmann with a ladder on "Lindy Lane" the day of the kidnapping, March 1, 1932. Colonel Schwarzkopf has been called by the defense.

Sitting at the state's counsel table, listening to de Bisschop's testimony, was Arthur Koehler, the federal wood technologist, who had testified for the prosecution that the ladder rail was sawed from the floor in the Hauptmann attic.

Mamma Dionne's Homesick, but Papa's in His Glory

Homesickness preyed on Mrs. Elzire Dionne, mother of the famed quintuplets, as she accepted adulation of thousands on her first visit to a metropolis, but she faced the Chicago throngs bravely and here is shown with her husband, Ovide, during a lull in the festivities. Mrs. Dionne, who now weighs more than 200 pounds, is on a rigid diet and finds little enjoyment in the rounds of dinners, night club entertainment, and receptions. But her husband is in his glory in the hurly-burly in which he suddenly has been thrust.

Bishop Moore to Speak 7:30 p. m.

Will Address Educational Meet at First Methodist Church

Bishop John M. Moore, of Dallas, Texas, will be the principal speaker at the educational rally at First Methodist church Friday night at 7 o'clock.

Reports coming in from the other rallies held this week in other parts of the state say that Bishop Moore's address is inspiring.

Representatives from other churches in the Prescott, Arkadelphia and Texarkana districts are expected to be present for this meeting.

It is hoped that every Methodist in this city will be present to get acquainted with the educational program of the church in regard to its colleges. Others interested in this cause are also invited.

Temperance Play Here on Monday

Many Local Citizens to Be in Cast at Tabernacle Production

A temperance drama called "Who's to Blame?" and vividly portraying conditions as they are under the new beer laws, will be given at the Tabernacle (old skating rink) Monday at 7:30, with 25 local characters assisted by Dr. Atticus Webb, of Dallas.

This is a new temperance drama copyrighted in 1934 and attracting capacity audiences wherever presented. It is part of a campaign for temperance education being conducted by the churches of Hope.

The drama is in the form of a court trial. Dr. J. H. Weaver will be the presiding judge, and will conduct his court in a dignified manner. Merlin Coop will take the part of Tom Moore, on trial for the murder of a total stranger, Walter Evans, at the "Blue Goose" dance hall.

J. E. Schooley will prosecute the case.

Robison Manager Is Home From Market

C. C. Lewis, general manager of Geo. W. Robison & Co., returned Friday from Dallas, where he and the company's salesmen had been buying ready-to-wear buyers from the company's stores in Hope, Prescott and Nashville spent a week buying new spring wearing apparel for their company.

Anticipating a decided upward trend in business this spring, Mr. Lewis stated that his company made heavier ready-to-wear purchases this year than ever before. He said that he and his buyers spent an entire day with one manufacturer selecting and buying merchandise.

'Social Security' Bill by Monday

Congress Asked to Enlarge Fund for Refinancing Mortgages

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Relief problems Friday continued to be the all-absorbing legislative topic of the capital.

The house ways and means committee concluded its hearings on the social security program and Monday will start the final draft of the bill.

Quick congressional approval was sought for a $1½-billion-dollar increase in the resources of the Home Owners Loan corporation and government insurance of industrial loans amounting to not more than $50,000 each.

Both proposals are incorporated in a bill already introduced in congress. The increase in available capital of the HOLC is requested to care for pending applications for home mortgage refinancing.

Administration Bill

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Another vital committee slash at the president's $4,880,000 work-relief bill, requiring the payment of prevailing wages to those employed, caused the administration to marshal strength in an effort to reverse this decision Thursday night.

The senate appropriations committee adopted the "prevailing wage" amendment by vote of 12 to 8. Several Democrats immediately informed Chairman Glass, Democrat, Virginia, of their plans to force reconsideration.

The amendment conflicts with Mr. Roosevelt's program to remove some 3,500,000 men from the relief rolls and put them to work at about $50 a month. It was estimated payment of prevailing wages would increase cost of work relief by many millions, and discourage seeking jobs in private industry.

Byrnes Hopeful of Change

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, said he expected to muster enough support to eliminate the amendment, insisted upon by the American Federation of Labor. Senators McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, and Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, who arrived in New York Thursday from the Philippines are expected to attend Friday's meeting and strengthen administration forces.

Allotment Made

Need for speed in passing the measure to prevent an exhaustion of relief funds was lessened Thursday by allocation of $50,000,000 from the $150,000,000 PWA housing appropriation. Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, said $100,000,000 thus would be available and would last until February 20.

Hopkins predicted two moves for his organization—revamping "within 20 minutes" after the new measure was passed, and "100 per cent" disbandment when the work program got under way.

A hole was drilled through an ordinary pin without damaging it by Harry Hues, Meaford, Out.

Senate Completes Action, and Names 11 Board Nominees

Board to Spend Federal Money Only—Solons Control Appointments

LIQUOR BILL IS UP

Futrell's State Control Proposal Introduced in Both Houses

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The senate Friday passed without amendment the house bill by Northcutt and Ferguson to create a State Welfare Board, and sent it to Governor Futrell along with the names of 11 persons the senate had nominated for places on the board.

The names were not immediately made public.

The senate had been in executive session during the afternoon to discuss the bill, after previously agreeing to adjourn at 1 p. m. until Monday.

The house, far behind in its business, decided to work Saturday and at noon took a recess until 2 p. m. prior to the senate's executive session.

It was reported that an agreement between the governor and the legislative leaders had been made whereby the senate would recede from several amendments it had offered on the welfare bill.

The agreement, it was reported, was that the board would disburse only federal money, and that the legislature would be permitted to confirm, or deny confirmation, members of the commission or their major employees.

A bill that provides for a state monopoly on liquor, sponsored by Governor Futrell, was introduced in the house. The bill is similar to Senator Evans' measure now pending in the senate.

The house debated, but could not get to a vote on a bill which would provide that any person desiring to donate or purchase tax-forfeited lands would be required to obtain a certificate from the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture describing the land.

The senate passed a bill which provides that fire department employees would not receive pensions unless they can prove they are in dire need.

The senate passed a bill designed to eliminate technicalities which prevent the state from giving a valid title to tax-forfeited lands.

4 Are Murdered Near Hot Springs

Man Confesses Slaying Family, and Surrenders to Justice

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Officers here Friday were advised by a rural justice of the peace that a family of four had been slain in the Royal community 10 miles east of here, and that a 45-year-old farmer had given himself up in connection with the case.

Justice of the Peace Mitchell Buttram brought here a man he described as Harry Lucas, and said the man had surrendered with the statement that he had just shot and killed four persons.

He named his victims as Charles Evans, Mrs. Evans, and their two daughters.

Bill to Tighten Tax Law Defeated

Effort to Put Pressure on Personal Collections, Is Lost

LITTLE ROCK—Senate Bill 215 by Senator Ashley to authorize the State Revenue Department to collect delinquent personal property taxes and to require publication of delinquent personal tax lists was defeated Thursday 24 to 11, being the first measure in two weeks or longer on which the full membership voted.

Senator Holloway, Gilbert, Milum, Cardwell and others opposed the provision that would permit a state official to collect local taxes. Senator Hall opposed it because it would repeal the installment plan of payment of taxes.

Senator Cardwell and Senator Ellis of Washington and Benton counties, respectively, engaged in a spirited argument over assessment and collection records in their counties. Senator Ellis called attention to a bulletin issued by the Department of Rural Economics of the University of Arkansas, showing delinquencies and decreases in assessments by counties. He read figures showing that Washington and Benton counties were about on a par, but Senator Cardwell insisted that Washington county property was assessed at nearer 50 per cent

Fact Finding Tribunal

IF THE Arkansas fact finding tribunal is abolished, as seems indicated by the recent 22 to 11 vote in the senate, either a new commission to regulate utility rates should be established or regulatory power should be placed with the corporation commission. Whether the outcome is retention of the fact finding tribunal, creation of a new commission or delegation of necessary power to the corporation commission, the legislature should create sufficient power to regulate rates and to enforce whatever regulations are promulgated.

The fact finding commission has done a lot of valuable work for Arkansas. Complaint is made that it is a slow-acting body. It is necessarily slow. Investigations of the kind required to set forth facts on which equitable rates could be based cannot be undertaken on the spur of the moment, nor can they be hurried along to quick conclusion.

The original tenure of the tribunal was four years, and it has been in existence only two years. Most of the work of the tribunal thus far has dealt with electric power. Requests now are pending before it for investigation of gas and telephone rates. It would be folly for the tribunal to institute such investigations as long as there remains the possibility of being legislated out of existence. Assured of continued existence, the tribunal could go ahead with its fact finding duties.

No matter what body is empowered to continue this fact finding work, power to fix rates equitably, based on the facts that are found, should be provided. There is necessity for both fact finding and rate fixing. The legislature should

Income Tax in a Nutshell

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $2,500 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more must file returns.

WHEN? The filing period begins January 1 and ends March 15, 1935.

WHERE? Collector of internal revenue for the district in which the person lives or has his principal place of business.

HOW? See instructions on forms 1040A and 1040.

WHAT? Four per cent normal tax on the amount of net income in excess of the personal exemption, credit for dependents, earned income credit, dividends of domestic corporations subject to taxation, and interest on obligations of the United States and obligations of instrumentalities of the United States. Surplus on net income in excess of $4,000.

No. 4

Personal Exemptions

In addition to the personal exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families, a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each dependent defined by income tax law and regulations as a person under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The term "mentally or physically defective" means not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

In order to be entitled to the $400 credit, the taxpayer must furnish the dependent his or her chief support. The credit is based upon actual financial dependency and not mere legal dependency. For example, a father whose children receive half or more of their support from a trust fund or other separate source is not entitled to the credit.

Neither relationship nor residence is a factor in the allowance of the $400 credit for a dependent. The taxpayer and the dependent may be residents of different cities. If husband and wife both contribute to the support of a dependent, the $400 credit may be taken by the one contributing the chief support, and may not be divided between them.

A single person who supports in his home an aged mother is entitled not only to the $400 credit for a dependent, but also to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family. A widower supporting under similar circumstances a dependent child under 18 years of age also is entitled to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus the $400 credit for a dependent.

Under the Revenue Act of 1934 both the personal exemption and the credit for dependents are required to be prorated where the status of the taxpayer changed during the year.

are doings and you want him to look nice.

This is once you can't say "Choose your own clothes, darling." Once you can't let him make the decision considered so necessary to his own development and individuality.

So now after being accustomed to do as he chose about his trappings, an where he wore them, this is the day Johnny chooses to go into a tannum and make a show of himself.

He goes over to Aunt Mary's all bungled up, still sobbing and looking like Wednesday's child. The new overcoat and hat and leggings are responsible. "Why in the world," you say, "did I have this scene with him today? Why didn't I break him in to this new outfit last week?"

Freeman Can Cause Trouble

This is the point I think to say. While it is all very fine to sport, "Choose your own little suit to wear today, darling," or "What little cup shall I put your milk in?" or "Will you take your sled or your wagon?" all of which decisions do make him more independent and cultivate initiative, they can at the same time cause trouble.

Like so many things in the new training this matter of choice can work mischief.

It is just as wise to keep a hand on the apron string, even though we do lengthen it at time. It is time to draw up short and let one little John know that, though his own "will and wanting" is important, there is another will to which he must listen very often.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

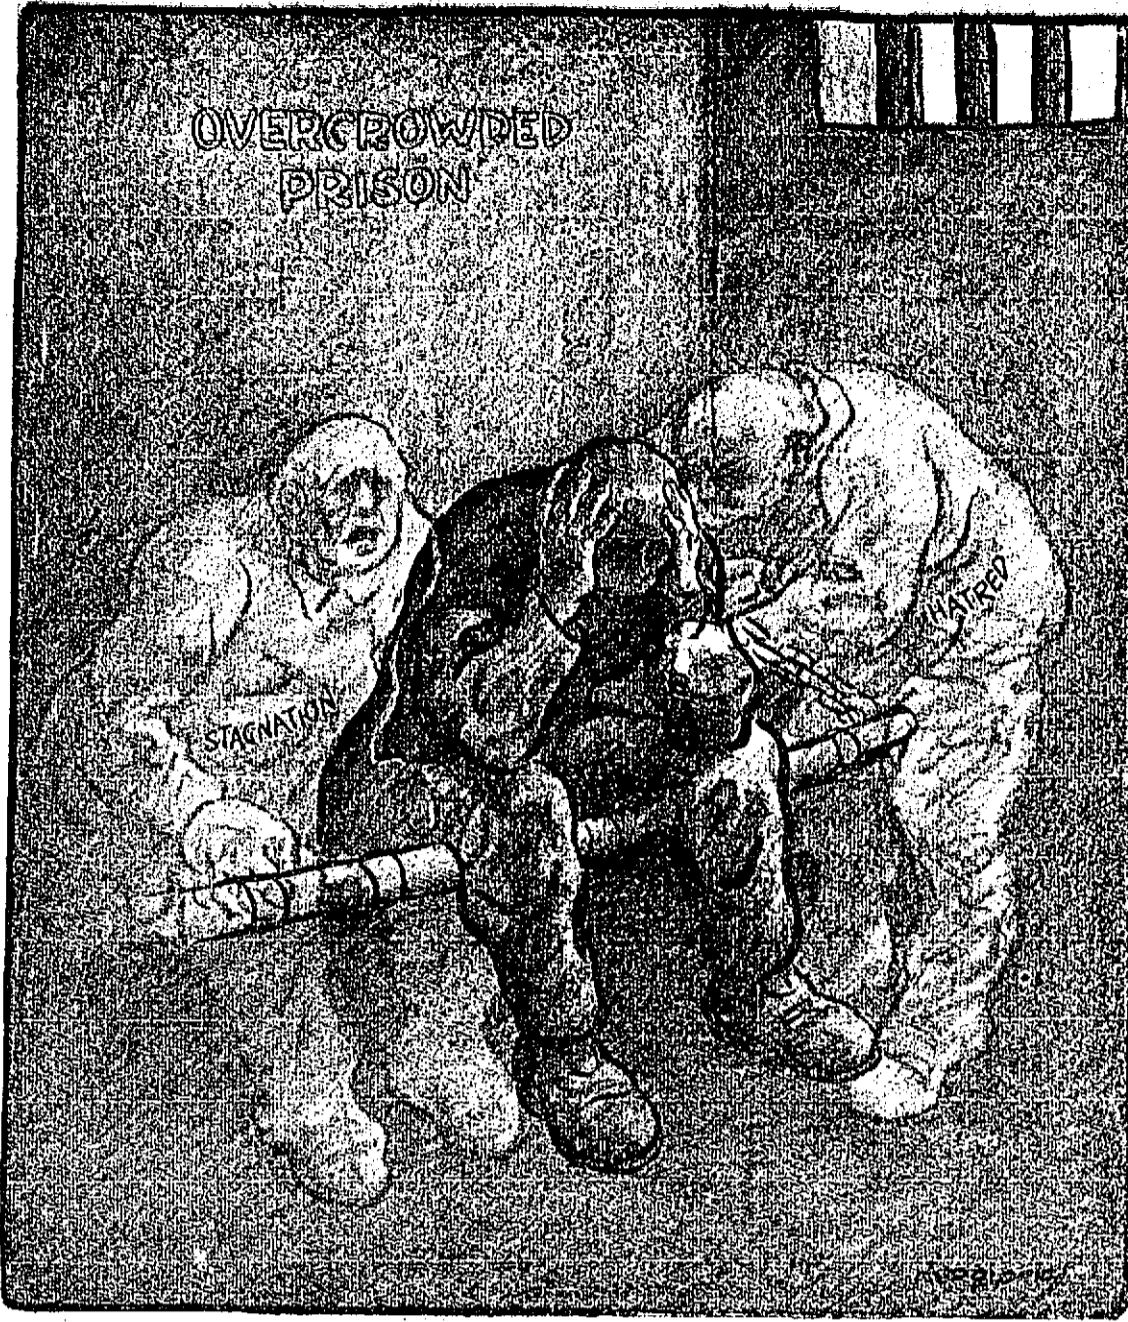

Cuticle Needs Brushing to Stay Smooth and Soft

Ragged cuticle and nails that split in layers are the bane of every fastidious woman's existence. If in spite of weekly manicures, you've been having trouble keeping your finger-nails smooth and neat, stop blaming liquid polish and polish removers, substitute an emery board for the steel nail file and get into the habit of brushing your nails each time you wash your hands. According to recent experiments, split finger-nails often are caused by poor circulation.

The ideal nail brush must have bristles that are both stiff and flexible and it should be convenient to hold in the hand. One particularly good one that has been put on the market recently has strong Siberian bristles stuck into a ball of satin-wood.

It's easy to hold and, when set down, rolls over on one side so that the bristles dry instead of becoming soggy. Furthermore, it's a decorative little gadget that you'll enjoy seeing on the bathroom shelf.

In addition to stimulating circulation which eliminates splits and other defects, using a brush on finger-nails keeps the cuticle smooth and prevents callouses. However, if small corns do appear at the sides, remove them with pumice stone or the fine side of an emery board. Never cut them.

If you can't find time to oil the cuticle once a day, put on a lavish amount one night a week, cover your hands with rich tissue cream and wear old cotton gloves to bed that night.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lee Broekman

© 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALIE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 15-year-old brother, PITT, support their invalid father.

STEVE VICKY, who also works in the mill asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give an answer in a few days. Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by HARRY WESTMORE whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Gale disappears before he learns her name.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian.

JOHN BOLLETT, another employee, tells Gale the mill workers are planning to organize and demand their rights. She takes Gale to come to a meeting and tells her of the plan.

Steve brings Gale some roses, apologizes and asks her to forget that they quarreled. She agrees.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

BRIAN WESTMORE skated slowly, hands in pockets, the tip of his cigarette glowing in the darkness. As far as the bend in the river where the big cottonwood hung out over the ice he went, then turned back. He had made the trip three times within the last half hour.

Brian skated close to the river bank, in the shadows. Not and then he looked back, but there was no one in sight. He hid the river to himself until he drew near the boat house. There were other skaters there—a number of boys playing hockey, half a dozen young girls, several couples and a dark youth cutting figures on the ice.

One of the hockey players went down and there were shrill cries and laughter. Brian circled the edge of the crowd, keeping his eyes on the place where the road came down past the boat house to a sort of wharf.

"She isn't coming," he told himself.

No, Gale Henderson wasn't coming. He'd been telling himself that for 15 minutes and yet he waited. Brian tossed his cigarette aside, turned and made his way up the river again.

All day long Brian had been looking forward to seeing Gale Henderson, saying things to tell her. He couldn't forget the girl. It wasn't that she was so pretty, though of course she was that, too. But he wanted to talk to her. He felt he could talk to her. Brian, during the past few weeks, had discovered that there were plenty of people to dictate letters to, there were plenty to attend conferences and to present reports and tables of figures, there were plenty to attend his mother's dinner parties but there was almost no one to talk to.

The men at the mill, heads of departments and their assistants, were all older than he was. When Brian wanted to make a suggestion he was aware of this, aware, too, that they were experienced and he was not.

He'd tried getting acquainted with some of the younger men, the assistants, but that hadn't turned out very well either. Gale Henderson was the only one about the mill who had really treated him like a human being. He wanted to tell her about that pension plan he'd worked out and see if she thought the employees would like it.

He passed the place where they'd laid their campfire the night before. The shore was dark and lonely now. And there was no slender figure wearing a short skirt and leather jacket skaling toward him. There was no one at all in sight.

Brian told himself again, "She isn't coming."

This time when he reached the boat house he took off his skates and walked down the road to the place where he had left his coupe. He got inside and turned the car about and started for home. Half way there he changed his mind and made a turn left. His mother was having some friends in, he remembered, and he didn't want to see them. He could drive to the club and see if anything was happening there or he could look up Ted Bainbridge.

Brian decided to do none of these things. A better prospect presented itself. He'd drop in at Thatchers. If Vicky were home he'd be assured of agreeable company. Vicky was a good sport—just the one to get him out of this moodiness.

A MAID in uniform answered his ring and said yes, that Vicky was in.

Brian said, "Where is she—in the living room? I'll go in—"

He turned into the large room at the left. Vicky was there, slim and picturesque in emerald velvet, with one arm stretched against the back of the divan.

A young man sat facing her. He was a tall young man with wavy reddish hair and his features were pleasant enough but it was clear that the young man was not pleased about something.

He said, "But look, Vicky—" and then stopped, seeing Brian.

Vicky was on her feet at once. "Brian!" she exclaimed, hurrying forward. "How sweet of you! I'd begun to think you'd buried yourself in that mill. Come and tell us how the wheels of industry are turning."

Greg Harmon had risen, too, but he was not smiling. "Hello, Brian," he said rather curtly. "How're you? Hope you don't mind if I run along?"

"Oh, but see here—!" Brian began.

"Greg was just leaving," Vicky assured him. "He doesn't find me sufficiently entertaining tonight. Really I think heaven must have sent you, Brian, to keep me from spending a poke evening alone."

She turned toward the other man. "Good night, Greg," she went on. "Give me a ring, won't you, tomorrow about 4? Don't call me earlier because I'm going shopping with Claire."

"You're sure I'm not interrupting," Brian asked.

Greg Harmon said, "No—got to be on my way. Got some things to see about. All right, Vicky, I'll call you."

He was gone. Vicky sank back on the divan, leaning her head against her open palm. The loose sleeve fell back, revealing a slim white arm. "Thank goodness that's over," she said dryly. "Give me a cigaret, Brian. I feel the need of one."

"You, Vicky? What on earth have you been doing?"

The girl's eyes regarded him pensively. "It's Greg," she said. "I don't know what I'm going to do about him."

"Well—?"

SHE shook her head. "Greg's getting to be a problem, Brian. Honestly, I don't know what to do. Just because I've gone around with him a little—playing golf and riding horseback and now and then going to parties—he seems to think I haven't any right to go with anyone else. It's ridiculous! And whenever I say anything he gets the way he was tonight—sullen and simply unbearable."

Brian shook his head, smiling. "The perils of being an irresistible charmer, my dear!"

Vicky pouted. "You can laugh," she said, "but it isn't very funny to me." Suddenly she stopped and the dark eyes grew rounder. "Oh," she said, "I've just thought of something—"

"Animal, mineral or vegetable?" She made a deprecating little movement with one hand. "I'm serious. Really I am." She went on, her voice touched with excitement. "But I don't see why it wouldn't work! Brian, will you do something for me?"

"Maybe I'd better hear about it first."

"It's nothing that would be so terribly hard—at least I don't think it would be. Just to take me to a few parties and be seen with me places. Oh, it's the very thing! Would you, Brian? Would you do that?"

"See here, I don't know what you're getting at."

"It's about Greg," she explained. "Don't you see that if you begin taking me places and—sort of seem fond of me—it will be the best way in the world to teach Greg that he can't order me around and bully me the way he's been trying to? It's exactly what he needs. You wouldn't have to keep it up long—only until Greg comes to his senses."

"Oh," he said, "I see. You want me to step in and play the heavy lover until Greg gets the idea he's not wanted?"

Vicky nodded. There was a gleam of almost feline satisfaction in the dark eyes. "Of course," she said, "we'd only be pretending."

"Of course. Well, if all you want me to do is to be your attentive escort I don't know how I can refuse."

"You'll do it? You will?" She put both hands on his arm and drew him nearer. "Oh, Brian," she said, "you are sweet!"

She looked very pretty as she raised her face to his, eyes glowing and the red lips slightly parted. Another girl had disappointed him that evening. Brian Westmore said slowly, "Of course, I'll help you. Vicky. Of course I will."

Your Body in Danger From Slow Gas Leak

You probably are well aware of the dangers of carbon monoxide gas poisoning, in the case of automobile exhaust. But this gas is just as serious a hazard, if not more so, right inside your home.

It is in the kitchen where the slightest leak of illuminating or cooking gas, to which you may be exposed unconsciously day after day, will cause serious disturbances in your system.

Exposure to large doses will result in severe poisoning and not infrequently in death.

Importance of checking regularly on gas leaks in your home is brought out by an investigation some scientists in the physiology laboratory of Iowa State College made recently with rats.

They wanted to determine the effect of small doses of illuminating gas taken day after day, on these animals.

The rats were exposed to varying percentage mixtures of air and illuminating gas for various periods of time. The daily exposures varied from 10 minutes on the first day to one hour, at the most, in about three weeks.

Tests were made particularly on the blood, since it is known that carbon monoxide affects the blood seriously and may bring about death through changing the red blood cells.

It has been found that when human beings are exposed to carbon monoxide gas under various circumstances, severe anemias may be produced, and in some cases destruction of the red blood cells may be followed by increases in the number of such cells, called polycythemia.

One of the first factors observed in the new investigations was the manner in which reproduction was hindered among the rats. The female gave birth to inferior offspring, which usually died.

Dizzy Dean Signs Up With St. Louis

Gets More Than $17,500, But Less Than $25,000 Demanded

ST. LOUIS.—(P)—The act of Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean and the St. Louis Cardinals management over Dean's unsigned 1935 contract, ended here late Thursday when Dizzy fell into the arms of President Sam Breadon, and signed the agreement.

Dizzy came to town from New York, broadcasting his intention to hold out on the Cardinals for a 1935 salary of $25,000, or he'd "go into business right across the street from Sam Breadon's place."

"It's $25,000 or nothing," said Dizzy. "I'm fed up on the way I've been treated. I'm seriously thinking of quitting baseball, anyhow."

Several hours later Dizzy and Breadon sat amicably together in the Cardinals' headquarters, and Dizzy signed his contract. He said it called for more than the $17,500 the Cardinals previously had offered for his services. Breadon would not discuss the amount. It was believed the document called for something between $17,500 and $19,000.

After the compact was signed Breadon said, "we're both satisfied."

"That's right," said Dizzy. "Everything's okay. To prove that me and Sam are the best of friends, I'll let 'em take a picture with my arm around Sam's neck. Let's shake on it, eh, Sam?"

"Sure," smiled Breadon. "I want to congratulate you on that contract. It calls for a lot of money."

"I'm worth it," said Dizzy.

Can You Find Hauptmann in This Court Crowd?

Without reading beyond this first sentence, can you find Richard Bruno Hauptmann in this picture? The photo was taken in the Washington, N. J., courtroom the other day as the alleged slayer of the Lindbergh baby was brought through the dense crowd after a luncheon recess to resume the witness stand. The picture clearly shows why troopers take firm hold of the prisoner when entering and leaving court. If you haven't already spotted Hauptmann, he may be seen just to the left above the man wearing glasses and plaid scarf in the right foreground.

When Jury Saw Hauptmann's Baby

While jurors hearing Bruno Hauptmann's trial looked on from the hotel across the way, Mrs. Anna Hauptmann peered at the entrance of the Hunterdon County (N. J.) jail where she was taking baby Maurice to visit his father. This was the jury's first glimpse of the defendant's child.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Peter Preaches at Pentecost

TEXT: Acts 2:22-28, 36-41

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 10, 1935

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Editor of Advance

The Peter of the Day of Pentecost is a very different Peter from the man of fear sitting by the fire in the court of the hall of judgment vehemently denying that he knows the man whose life is at stake, or that he has been his disciple.

With the restoration of Peter to the ranks of disciples, with assurance of the Father's forgiveness and love, and with the three-fold protestations of his own love, there came to Peter the old-time courage and self-forgetfulness of a passionate hope and faith.

"The opportunity of displaying this faith and courage, that came to him on the Day of Pentecost was unique. The disciples, in fear and perplexity, following the crucifixion of Jesus, had their faith renewed with the evidences of His resurrection, and went forth with the spirit of conquest that had inspired them in their first coming to Jesus and their acceptance of discipleship."

Now on the Day of Pentecost, we are told, they were gathered at one place with one accord; old jealousies and ambitions were forgotten in the glory of the things that filled their souls; outward manifestations of the case spirit that moved them only increased the spirit of expectation and enthusiasm.

Everything was ripe for profound and deep experience, and we have a deeply moving narrative of the first

There are classes for all ages. We should appreciate very much for more to become interested in the study of the Bible. It contains the will of the Lord. How much do you know about it? We invite you to attend this part of the worship.

Preaching service begins at 11 a. m., just following the Bible study. Subject for the morning sermon, "The World Without Excuse."

The evening services begin at 7:15. The lesson to be studied is "Those of Whom God Is Not Ashamed." We invite you to attend all of these services.

that about 3000 souls were added to the church, which had now been definitely launched upon its historical development.

The effect of Peter's sermon and all the influences of Pentecost were so extensive and remarkable as they were deep. Swept away by the vision and power of the new ideal, a spirit of brotherly love and devotion took hold of the disciples lifting them above all selfish interests and leading them even into greater giving up their private property and putting it into a common fund.

The world for the most part has condemned this economic manifestation of their religious earnestness and interest as universally as it has commended the quality of the experience itself. But one may well pause to wonder whether a similar great outpouring of religious grace, with the consequent enthusiasm, would not solve many of our modern problems, and we wonder at times whether such problems can ever be solved except as men and women everywhere are baptized with a new power of unselfish motive and action.

Certainly it would bring all men under the power and experience of Pentecost, it would matter little what forms the social change might take.

A world built on unselfishness such

Subpoenas Out for Ship Speculators

Gene Tunney Corporation Suspected of Getting Market "Tip"

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Subpoenas for two stock market speculators and a move toward possible perjury action against past witnesses emerged Thursday from the senate munitions committee.

The committee issued the subpoenas to bring before it Ben Smith and Thomas Bragg, some of whose speculative activities have been heard about before on Capitol Hill.

They will be questioned concerning reports that "Washington contacts" tipped them to buy New York Shipbuilding Corporation stock before PWA money was turned into the naval construction program.

The committee also disclosed it had turned over to the United States district attorney, Leslie Garnett, a record of last week's testimony for him to determine whether conflicting stories told about an alleged ship contract "fixer" involved possibly perjury.

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, said all records bearing on testimony that a "fixer" had offered to secure naval contracts for Gulf Industries of Pensacola, a shipbuilding firm, for a "consideration" of $250,000 had been turned over.

Thursday's testimony brought a story of a Wall Street race for stock of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation that ended with Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, sharing the "saddle" with the Cord Corporation, a power in the industrial world.

The committee was given evidence that the stock buying saw the New York Corporation quotations climb from $3.50 a share to $22.50 in six months following inauguration of President Roosevelt.

It was this rocketing price that set the committee off on the track of a "Washington contact."

Asked if Tunney would be called as a witness, Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, asked:

"Why should we?"

Tunney was described as sitting on the Board of Directors for Smith and Bragg, while representatives of Cord Corporation, once headed by the noted automobile manufacturer, E. L. Cord, comprised the rest of the board.

L. B. Manning, chairman of the board of Cord Corporation and of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, said his organization held half the stock while the two represented by Tunney held the balance, the two groups taking control in August 1933.

"It seems to me that Bragg and Smith must have given you some assurance they would get some public works money," Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, insisted.

"We had no such assurance," Manning replied. "Nobody could have known it. The newspapers were full of it."

"Did you buy into New York Ship," Vandenberg continued, "because you hoped Ben Smith and Tom Bragg could remove part of the speculation out of the investment through their Washington contacts?"

"It's still quite a speculation," Manning replied.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Langston visited Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Dock Hamilton and son James visited Grandpa Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Hamilton near Oakland Monday.

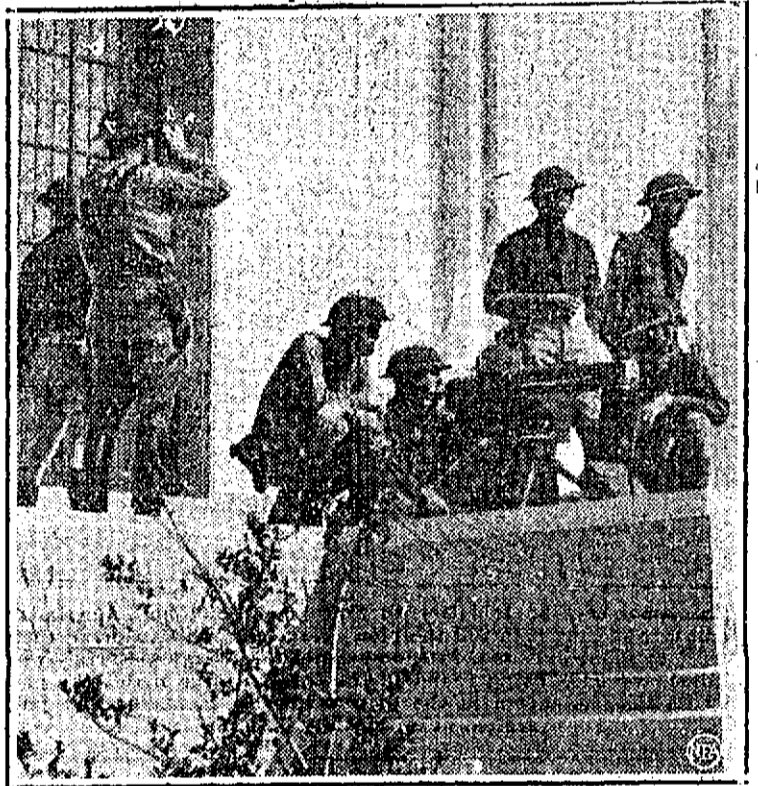

Friends are glad to know that Mrs. Howard Langston is able to be back home again.

Huey Long Hears of Plot

Apparently convinced that there had been a plot to assassinate him, him, Senator Huey P. Long indefinitely postponed further hearings of his personally conducted murder conspiracy investigation. He is pictured (center) in court at Baton Rouge, La., during the session which brought a confession by George Davis, former deputy sheriff, of his alleged participation in an assassination plot involving $20,000. At right is Attorney General Gaston Porter.

Troops on Guard

Although Huey Long's murder plot inquiry has been indefinitely postponed, Baton Rouge, La., continues under martial law. National Guardsmen are pictured at the Louisiana State Capitol, ready to repulse any attempt to overthrow the Long dictatorship.

Chocolate Pie Contains Nutrients as Well as Filling

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

I talk about pie pretty often on the theory that it's impossible to overdo a really good thing. I am completely convinced that well-made crisp flaky crust, luscious filling and meringue that melts in your mouth have kept many a home from falling to pieces. It's an axiom that men prefer pie, and I believe in axioms. They are the result of the race's experience!

Most plain everyday meals find in pie their perfect ending. A pie made with a filling of milk and eggs contains many calories and much actual food value, too, so if preceded with only a sandwich and a glass of milk you have a well-balanced, nourishing meal.

One-Crust Pies Richest

It's the one-crust meringue-covered pies mostly that supply the food value and nourishment. Most of these pies are nothing more nor less than delicate custard puddings, served in pie crust and topped with whites of eggs beaten until stiff with sugar. Even little children may have the filling, although the crust should be denied them.

When you bake your crust and then fill it there's no danger of a soggy crust. Also, you can bake the crust several days before you plan to use it and fill it with the filling that best suits the main course. For example if you're having fish choose a lemon filling, pork chops would precede a chocolate filling, after veal a prune or raisin filling is delicious and helps to balance the meal.

Chocolate Cream Pie

Three squares baking chocolate, 2½ cups milk, 1 cup granulated sugar, 4 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 baked 9-inch pie shell.

Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler, beating with a rotary beater as chocolate begins to melt. Beat until blended. Mix and sift sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add enough hot milk to make precede it with only a sandwich mixture of pouring consistency, stirring to keep smooth. Add to hot milk in double boiler and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Then continue cooking about ten minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour a small amount of mixture over egg yolks, stirring vigorously. Return this to double boiler and cook two minutes.

longer. Remove from heat, stir in butter and vanilla and beat with spoon until slightly cooled. Cool. Turn into pie shell and cover with meringue

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Pineapple Juice, cereal, cream, creamed eggs on toast, milk, coffee.
Luncheon: Macaroni chop suey, cottage cheese and currant preserves and head lettuce salad, popovers, milk, tea.
Dinner: Roast shoulder of pork, potatoes baked with meat, red cabbage and apples, chocolate cream pie, milk, coffee.

made with whites of eggs. Or you can cover the chocolate filling with whipped cream.

A meringue is best to cover a lemon pie, however.

I like red cabbage with pork in any form and, of course, apples are traditional. So why not cabbage and apples?

Red Cabbage and Apples

Three cups shredded red cabbage, 3 cups thinly sliced red apples, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons currant jelly, ¼ teaspoon white pepper, 4 tablespoons vinegar.

Wash and core apples. Cook cabbage and apples in just enough water to prevent burning until tender. Toss the mixture lightly with a fork to insure even cooking. Add butter, salt, pepper, jelly and vinegar and cook and stir until jelly and butter are melted and mixture is very hot. Serve at once.

You can use white cabbage if red cabbage is not available.

Melrose

Church and Sunday school was well attended here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Beard are the proud parents of a baby girl born on Saturday, Feb. 2.

Mrs. George Collins and daughter little Joy Lavonne called on her brother Floyd Woolsey at Columbus on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy House, Mrs. Leola House and children and Miss Dorothy Sparks of Idabelle, Okla., spent Monday and Tuesday in Melrose.

Mrs. Talmadge Braswell and children of Texarkana and Mrs. J. T. Newberry called on Mrs. Garland Rogers Friday.

There were two wedding ceremonies at Rev. I. J. Rogers' Saturday night. They were Edgar Browning and Miss Rosalie Mayton of Hope; Smead Mayo and Miss Ollie Ellis of Guernsey. We wish the young couples a long and happy life.

Jack Roice and Miss Mae Belle Wicker of Hope spent Sunday with Bro. and Mrs. Osh Rogers.

Three thousand, four hundred and twenty-one (3421) persons in Hope and its surrounding trade territory paid approximately $12,500 during 1934 for the privilege of reading the Hope Star, Southwest Arkansas' Leading Daily Newspaper. They knew its value and wanted it . . . and were willing to pay for it. All of which results in—

ADVERTISING THAT PULLS

When your potential customers are willing to spend on the average of $3.66 a year for your advertising media, they are going to read it . . . and read it thoroughly. They ordered their paper—and paid cash with their order.

Your advertisement can and should be of as much interest to them as the number one story on the front page . . . and if it is, it will be read just as carefully. Doping of Horses Threatens Racing

Repeal Bill Recommended to Pass, 16 to 6, in Texas House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Texas Rangers, broncho enthusiasts, studied thoroughbred runners at Texas tracks Thursday night for evidence of the use of narcotics by gamblers seeking to make racing bets a sure thing. The orders came from Gov. James V. Allred, who doesn't like pari-mutuel betting and declares gamblers have reaped big profits from illegally stimulating race horses. "I have evidence to prove it," he said, adding that the inquiry might link Texas with a nation-wide ring which is receiving federal attention. "The investigation will disclose some skulduggery in the changing of reports on chemical tests made on horses." Governor Allred said that the investigation has been quietly under way for a few days. The governor said that as far as he knew only one Texas track was involved at present but he said the inquiry would be pursued into operations at all tracks. "There is no doubt from the investigation made so far that doping of horses is being done and that the gamblers are reaping a big profit from it," the governor said. From other sources it was reported changes from "positive" to "negative" had been made in reports on saliva tests after they left the office of the state Livestock Sanitary Commission in Fort Worth and before they reached the track veterinarian at Alamo Downs, San Antonio. Eight trainers at Alamo Downs were suspended recently. Governor Allred is supporting a bill pending in the Texas legislature proposing repeal of the state law, enacted less than two years ago, legalizing pari-mutuel wagering. Legalized betting would be repealed under a bill reported favorably by the house criminal jurisprudence committee late Thursday night. A well-organized and militant majority blocked all efforts to delay a vote on the bill and it was sent to the floor by an overwhelming vote of 15 to 6. It was the first victory in the drive that was started immediately after passage of the wagering law by the last legislature.

Dr. G. Neese Joins Josephine Hospital

Illinois U. Graduate New Member of Local Hospital Staff

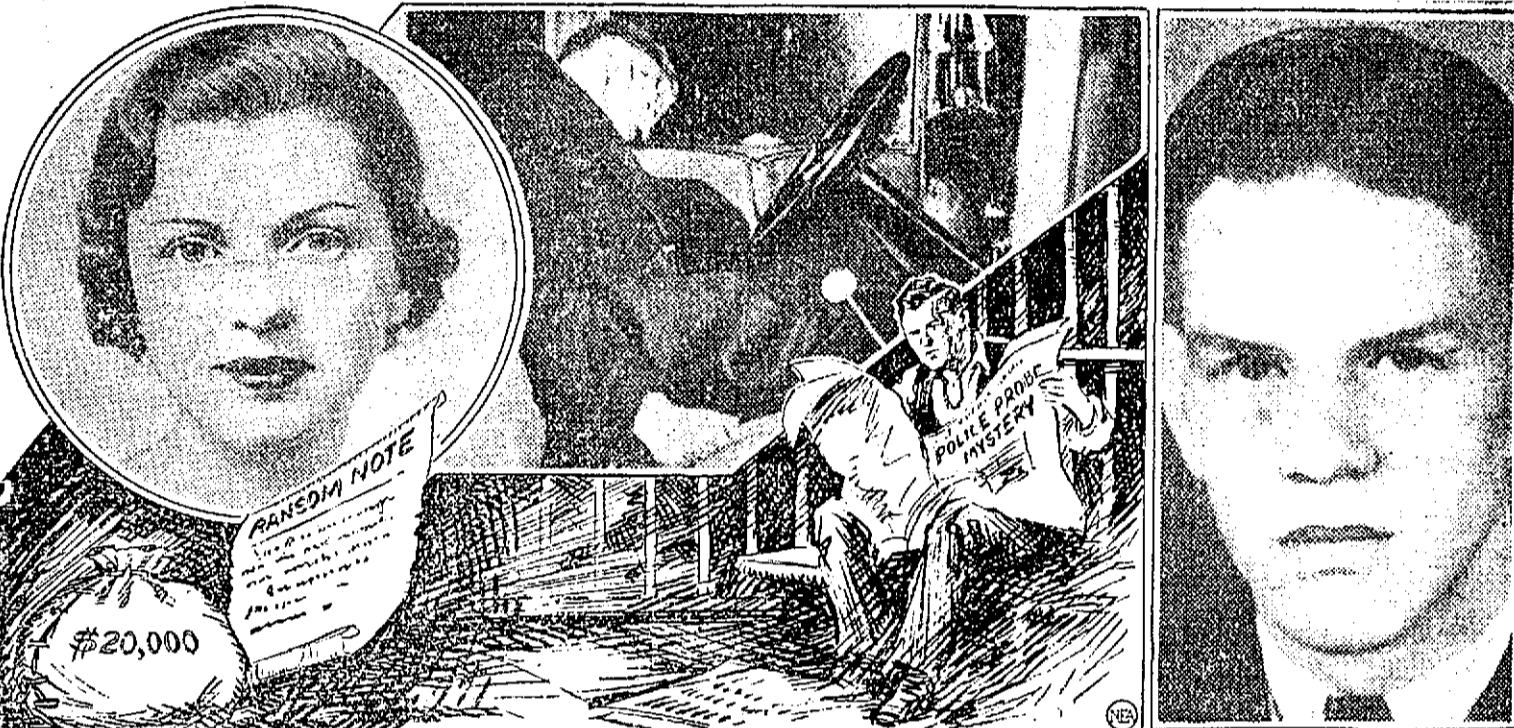

Dr. Gus Neese, graduate of University of Illinois Medical school and formerly associated with St. Thomas hospital at Nashville, Tenn., has joined the staff of Josephine hospital here, it was announced Friday. Dr. Neese is originally from near Nashville, Howard county. After graduation from the Illinois medical school he joined St. Thomas hospital. From that institution he came to Hope. He will maintain an office at the hospital where he will be associated with Dr. A. C. Kolb and Dr. G. E. Cannon.

Tulsa Murder Trial Mystery Deepened

Accused of a murder around which a fabric of weird mystery has been woven, Philip Kennamer, 19, left, son of Federal Judge F. E. Kennamer, of Tulsa, Okla., will go on trial contending that he accidentally killed John Gorrell, Jr. Back of the tragedy is a bizarre story of the Tulsa younger set, with too much oil money, striving for new thrills. Vague tales are told of youthful crime eliques, holdups, kidnap and extortion threats and terror rings, of pampered youths at orgies in shady dives. Scores of the younger wealthy set were questioned after the killing and the mystery then was deepened when Sidney Born, Jr., shown lower right, was found shot to death in his car, apparently a suicide. Born was a close friend of Kennamer.

Gorrell, shown at extreme right, son of a prominent Tulsa man, plotted to extort $20,000 from H. F. Wilcox, oil magnate, under threat to kidnap his beautiful daughter, Virginia, 19, shown above, Kennamer alleges. Gorrell wrote the extortion note and gave it to Kennamer to mail, according to the prisoner's story. A few nights later, as the pair rode in a fashionable section of Tulsa, Kennamer says he told Gorrell that he did not mail the letter and was keeping it to foil the plot. He declares that Gorrell then tried to shoot him and, in the struggle for the gun, Gorrell was killed, the body being found in the car the same night, the gun by its side, as shown in the picture above. Kennamer, in jail, scoffed at an insanity defense.

M. E. Green, 75, Is Dead at El Dorado

Former Local Man Survived by Two Grandchildren of This City

M. E. Green, formerly of Hope, died Thursday at his home in El Dorado. He was about 75. He is survived by his widow and one son, El Dorado; two grandchildren, Aubrey and Lorene Green of Hope.

GRiffin SMITH IS

(Continued from Page One) do the same kind of work." Smith also took exception to the funds from which the comptroller's appropriation was taken. He said $35,000 came from the general revenue fund, $10,000 from the highway fund, $1,500 from the toll bridge fund, $2,500 from the charities fund, $2,000 from the Confederate pension fund, $2,500 from the University of Arkansas fund, $400 from the university building fund, other sum "from every fund they could get their hands on."

Smith announced he reserved the right to close the debate.

Comptroller McCollum of Monroe, first to speak against the bill, declared the comptroller's was "one of the most valuable departments of our state government," and deplored the attack upon it. He said the comptroller's and state auditor's offices were separate and distinct. He said that one reason why employees in the comptroller's office received higher salaries is that work done by them required skilled men and women. However, he denied that salaries are "out of line."

The comptroller's assistance to the budget committee during the 1933 session of the General Assembly enabled the state to reduce its operating expenses more than 50 per cent, he said. Referring to charges made in the committee hearing on the bill to the effect that Griffin Smith had caused the state to pay the expenses of himself and a stenographer to Washington, McCollum exhibited photostatic copies of the comptroller's expense account, showing the cost was $110, declaring that whereas if the comptroller had employed a stenographer in Washington, it would have cost many times more because it would have been necessary to bring the stenographer to Little Rock to testify in a criminal case. The purpose of the trip was to obtain evidence regarding an alleged false claim against the state, McCollum said.

Pointing out savings to the state in printing contracts, made by the comptroller's office, McCollum said some printing establishments had been making "independent fortunes off the state" until Griffin Smith stopped them. He said that $28,000 was saved on state printing last year. Discussing county auditing by the comptroller, McCollum said the records reveal that in the 27 months Griffin Smith has been in office, shortages and other irregularities totaling $511,000 have been disclosed, and that the comptroller had recovered $183,000 for the state in two years. "Saddle this work on the state auditor and you might overload him," McCollum said in closing. "Griffin Smith has had a cleansing effect on certain classes of people who have been preying on the state treasury."

THE NEW DEAL

on Capitol Hill primarily through his defiance of congressmen and other politicians who sought both pork and patronage from him during his administration of the first $3,300,000,000 public works fund. The House contains many disappointed soreheads who sought post-offices and other federal buildings which weren't needed, jobs for political supporters, allotments for public work projects which didn't look good to Jekes, and favors for land speculators, sharp contractors, "hot oilers," lobbyists, power interests, Indian looters, and local politicians.

Apply Heavy Pressure These interests behind the congressmen, knowing that Jekes blocked their various games, are exerting all possible pressure against the stubborn secretary.

Many congressmen, elected in great proportion than ever before on promises to get federal funds for home projects—often of doubtful nature—don't want Jekes to be handling any of that $4,000,000,000.

And of course a fellow like Jekes makes no hit with that powerful New Deal political boss, Jim Farley. Jekes knows how to hit back. While the sniping was hottest, he moved to take the Elk Hills oil reserve away from Standard Oil and other interests on the ground that it was government property.

He followed that up by pushing for a grand jury investigation of alleged graft in a Texas PWA project which will involve certain political figures. The unspoken threat is that Jekes may yet reveal much more which he knows about politicians and their

PWA activities.

And He's "Discourteous" The semi-official version of complaints in the House against Jekes, given by House leaders who promised the complainants that Roosevelt rather than Jekes would administer the $4,000,000,000, was that it was based on the secretary's alleged "discourtesy" to congressmen.

No one explained exactly what was meant by that. Everybody knows Jekes has sometimes been hard-boiled, even with congressmen.

If you know some of the congressmen, you'd probably guess why. But it's admitted that Jekes doesn't know how to say "No!" and make 'em like it.

That's an important part of the bureaucratic technique in which he is sadly deficient. He could take many tips from Roosevelt, who can even say "no" and make his visitors think he is saying "yes."
